Lowell. I Say, Aunt Margaret, why don t you tell us the story you promised to, about that lamp that did such queer things? If your aunt ever gets through gazing out of the window, I should be glad to hear the paper read. Oh, dear, that s always the way; Jack and I never want to hear a story, but what somebody wants something. Its meaner than any thing - and George kicked his heels harder than ever against the wall, as he lay on the floor with his legs at right angles with his body. There was little in the scene upon which Margaret Crosby had been looking out for the last half hour, with her elbow on the window-sill, and her chin in her hand, to at tract and...
